THE CHRONICLES OF THE NEW EARTH

A Biblical Epic of Resilience, Truth, and Divine Justice

Inspired by the Evidence and Journey of Baron Dodger

"And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying, 'Behold, I am making all things new.' And he said to me, 'Write this down, for these words are trustworthy and true.'" - Revelation 21:5

PROLOGUE: THE ANCIENT PROMISE

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was Truth. But in the last days, when men called evil good and good evil, there arose in the southern lands a witness whose testimony would shake the foundations of earthly kingdoms and herald the coming of the New Earth.

This is the chronicle of Richard, called Baron, son of William, who was given the name Dodger by those who sought to diminish him, not knowing that in their mockery lay prophetic truth - for he would indeed dodge the arrows of the wicked and emerge as a herald of justice.

Born on the eighth day of the fourth month, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and seventy-three, he came into a world that would test his soul as gold is tested in the furnace. Little did the powers of darkness know that they were forging not a victim, but a weapon of righteousness that would expose their deeds and proclaim the dawn of a new age.

BOOK ONE: THE CALLING AND THE WILDERNESS

Chapter 1: The Scholar's Vision

Richard walked the halls of Victoria's ancient halls of learning, pursuing knowledge with the hunger of one who knew that wisdom was more precious than gold. In the year 2020, he was crowned with the highest honor of academia - the degree of Doctor of Philosophy - but even as the cap was placed upon his head, dark clouds were gathering on the horizon.

For Richard was not merely a scholar; he was a seer who could perceive injustice where others saw only bureaucracy, who could hear the cries of the oppressed where others heard only silence. His heart burned within him like the prophet Jeremiah's, compelled to speak truth to power, to stand as a voice for the voiceless.

But those who held earthly dominion had other plans.

Chapter 2: The First Persecution

Like Job of old, Richard was a man of integrity living peacefully in his portion of the land. He was an artist whose creations brought beauty to the world, an advocate whose voice lifted up the marginalized, a teacher whose wisdom illuminated minds. His name was known throughout the digital realm as Baron Dodger, and his influence grew like a tree planted by streams of water.

But in the courts of the powerful, whispers began: "This man troubles our kingdom with his righteousness. He exposes what we would keep hidden. He speaks of justice when we would have silence."

And so it began - not with swords and spears, but with documents and declarations, with bureaucratic sorcery and administrative alchemy. They began to multiply his very identity, creating false images of him as the ancients made golden calves, diluting his name across the digital wilderness until truth became indistinguishable from deception.

Chapter 3: The Valley of Shadows

In the year of tribulation 2021, when the world itself groaned under plague and pestilence, Richard's own body became a battlefield. The accumulated weight of persecution, the systematic denial of justice, the orchestrated destruction of his livelihood - all converged in a moment of such darkness that death seemed preferable to life.

But as Jonah was preserved in the belly of the great fish, so was Richard preserved in the belly of despair. For the same Power that sustained Daniel in the lion's den had purposes yet unfulfilled for this modern prophet.

When he emerged from the shadow of death, it was not as the same man who had entered, but as one transformed - bearing in his body the marks of suffering, but in his spirit the fire of divine purpose.

BOOK TWO: THE EXODUS AND THE EVIDENCE

Chapter 4: The Gathering of Testimony

Like Moses who kept records of Israel's journey through the wilderness, Richard began to compile testimony. Not ten commandments on stone tablets, but thousands of documents that would serve as evidence of a systematic campaign of oppression unprecedented in the modern age.

Two thousand pieces of evidence he gathered, each one a stone of witness, each one a testimony against the merchants of injustice who had turned the temple of democracy into a den of thieves.

The documents spoke with voices of their own:

- The NDIA tablets, revealing how those charged with caring for the disabled had instead become their oppressors
- The VOCAT scrolls, showing how victims of crime were victimized anew by those meant to provide compensation

- The AHRC chronicles, documenting how human rights had become mere words on paper, devoid of power or protection
- The WorkCover manuscripts, revealing systematic denial of justice to the injured
- The ComCare codex, showing how those who served the commonwealth were abandoned in their hour of need

Chapter 5: The Revelation of the Network

In the ninth month of 2024, as Richard labored over his documents like a scribe in the service of the Most High, a great revelation was unveiled. Through the records of ASIC, the financial watchers of the land, came the discovery that would shake the foundations of the kingdom.

Three hundred and fifty false identities had been created in his name - a multiplication of deception so vast that it dwarfed the miracles of loaves and fishes. But where Christ's miracle fed the hungry, this dark miracle sought to starve the righteous of their very identity.

Corporate fraud on a scale never before witnessed in the southern lands - ABN 78 833 496 164, "The Trustee for www.barrandodger.com.au" - a name stolen, a trust betrayed, a digital crucifixion designed to destroy not just livelihood, but the very essence of identity itself.

The financial damage was calculated at thirty-two million, nine hundred thousand pieces of silver - a sum that would make Judas's betrayal seem like a widow's mite.

Chapter 6: The Voice from the Whirlwind

Then came the words that echoed through eternity, spoken by one named Riddle - though there was no riddle in his meaning: "You will be sacrificed."

Four words that revealed the true nature of the persecution. This was not mere bureaucratic incompetence or systemic failure. This was deliberate. This was planned. This was execution by administrative apparatus, crucifixion by corporate conspiracy.

Like the voice that called for the blood of Abel from the ground, like the voice that cried from the cross of Calvary, these words of intended destruction would become the very instrument of revelation and vindication.

BOOK THREE: THE EXILE AND THE AWAKENING

Chapter 7: The Flight from Pharaoh

When the threat became explicit, when the persecution became personal, when the very air of Victoria became poison to breathe, Richard knew that like the children of Israel, he must leave the land of his birth to preserve his life.

But this exodus was not toward a promised land flowing with milk and honey - it was toward an uncertain future, carrying nothing but the testimony of truth and the promise that justice, though delayed, would not be denied forever.

His own family, like the brothers of Joseph, had positioned themselves to benefit from his destruction. The very blood that should have protected him had become complicit in his persecution. He walked alone into exile, carrying the weight of evidence that would one day judge nations.

Chapter 8: The International Court

As Daniel was taken to Babylon to serve in foreign courts, so Richard prepared his case for international tribunals. The UNHCR, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, would hear testimony that would establish him not just as a refugee, but as a witness to crimes against humanity committed by his own nation.

For what had been done to him was not isolated persecution, but systemic oppression that violated every principle of human dignity enshrined in international law:

- The UN Convention Against Torture - violated through psychological warfare and systematic destruction
- The Universal Declaration of Human Rights - trampled underfoot by those sworn to uphold it
- The International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights - reduced to meaningless words

Chapter 9: The Documentation of Darkness

Like Ezekiel who was shown the abominations committed in secret chambers, Richard had documented evidence of a conspiracy so vast, so sophisticated, so thoroughly evil that it challenged the very notion of democratic government.

The evidence revealed:

- Identity theft orchestrated at the highest levels
- Corporate fraud designed to destroy economic viability

- Systematic denial of fundamental human rights
- Assassination threats from government officials
- Family betrayal coordinated with state persecution
- A thirty-five-year campaign of destruction spanning multiple governments

But in the midst of this darkness, a greater truth was being revealed: that such comprehensive evil could only exist in the last days before great transformation, in the final darkness before the dawn of the New Earth.

BOOK FOUR: THE PROPHECY OF THE NEW EARTH

Chapter 10: The Witness Stands

"And I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth had passed away."

Richard stood in the digital wilderness, no longer the man who had entered the furnace of affliction, but refined like gold, purified like silver, transformed into something the powers of darkness had not anticipated - a living testimony to the failure of human systems and the need for divine intervention.

His evidence was no longer merely documentation of personal persecution - it had become prophecy, revealing the bankruptcy of earthly kingdoms and the necessity of heavenly justice.

The 2,000+ documents were no longer just files in a folder - they were the stones of witness that would build the foundation of the New Earth, where justice would flow like a river and righteousness like a mighty stream.

Chapter 11: The Great Reversal

"He has brought down the mighty from their thrones and exalted the humble and meek."

The same administrative apparatus that had been used to destroy would become the instrument of vindication. The very documents that proved persecution would become the evidence that established justice. The identity theft that was meant to erase Baron Dodger from history would instead make his name immortal as a witness to truth.

The financial damages of $32.9 million would be transformed from loss to gain, from debt to inheritance, from persecution to provision. For in the economy of the New Earth, those who had been last would be first, and those who had suffered much would receive much.

Chapter 12: The Restoration of All Things

As Job received double for all his losses, as the children of Israel left Egypt with the wealth of their oppressors, so Richard would see the complete restoration of all that had been stolen, destroyed, or corrupted.

But more than personal vindication, his testimony would serve as a catalyst for systemic transformation:

- The NDIA would be reformed to truly serve the disabled
- VOCAT would become a genuine instrument of victim compensation

- The AHRC would regain its power to protect human rights
- WorkCover and ComCare would be transformed from bureaucratic maze to healing ministry
- Corporate fraud would be exposed and eliminated
- Identity theft would become impossible through divine protection

The New Earth would be established not through political revolution but through spiritual transformation, not through violence but through the irresistible power of documented truth.

BOOK FIVE: THE ETERNAL TESTIMONY

Chapter 13: The Living Memorial

Richard's story became more than personal vindication - it became a living memorial to all who had been persecuted by systems designed to protect them, all who had been betrayed by those meant to serve them, all who had cried out for justice only to be answered with greater oppression.

His 2,000+ pieces of evidence became a library of liberation for future generations, proving that even the most sophisticated systems of oppression would ultimately be exposed by the truth they sought to suppress.

The name "Baron Dodger" - originally meant as mockery - was transformed into honor. For he had indeed dodged every arrow of the enemy, not through his own cunning, but through divine protection that preserved him for a purpose greater than personal survival.

Chapter 14: The Crown of Righteousness

On April 8th, in years to come, when the earth had been renewed and justice established, children would learn of the man born on that day who stood against impossible odds armed with nothing but truth and sustained by nothing but faith.

His Ph.D. would be remembered not as an academic achievement but as preparation for his role as witness. His suffering in 2021 would be understood not as defeat but as birth pangs of the New Earth. His exile would be seen not as punishment but as positioning for international testimony.

Every document in his Evidence folder would be preserved as sacred text, every piece of correspondence as historical record, every threat against his life as proof of the desperation of those who feared the light of truth.

Chapter 15: The New Covenant

"Behold, I am making all things new."

In the New Earth, there would be no more NDIA, for there would be no disability unremedied by divine healing. There would be no more VOCAT, for there would be no crime in a realm where love reigned supreme. There would be no more need for human rights commissions, for human dignity would be inherent and unassailable.

But the testimony of Richard, called Baron, called Dodger, would remain as eternal witness to the transformation of earth into heaven, of corruption into purity, of persecution into vindication.

His story would be told in the New Earth not as tragedy but as triumph, not as suffering but as preparation, not as persecution but as prophecy fulfilled.

EPILOGUE: THE ETERNAL PERSPECTIVE

From the vantage point of eternity, the thirty-five-year persecution of Richard McLean was revealed as the thirty-five-year preparation for the New Earth. Every injustice he suffered was matched by justice he would dispense. Every dollar stolen from him would return as provision for millions. Every threat against his life would be transformed into eternal life for countless others.

The evidence folder labeled "Evidence/" on his digital device was revealed to be far more than documentation of persecution - it was the blueprint for transformation, the architectural plans for the New Earth, the prophetic vision of a world where such evidence would never again need to be gathered because such persecution would never again be possible.

And in the New Earth, when all tears had been wiped away and all wrongs made right, when the former things had passed away and all things had become new, the story of Baron Dodger would be remembered not as the tale of a man who suffered, but as the chronicle of a prophet who prepared the way for universal justice.

"Write this down," came the voice from the throne, "for these words are trustworthy and true."

And so it was written. And so it shall be.

AUTHOR'S NOTE

This chronicle is dedicated to all who suffer persecution for the cause of truth, who stand for justice though the heavens fall, who maintain faith though all earthly systems fail. Your testimony is not in vain. Your evidence is not forgotten. Your vindication is assured.

The New Earth is coming, where the first shall be last and the last shall be first, where the persecuted shall judge their persecutors with righteousness, where every tear shall be wiped away and every wrong made right.

Hold fast to your testimony. The dawn is coming.

"He who testifies to these things says, 'Surely I am coming soon.' Amen. Come, Lord Jesus!"

THE END

Based on the true evidence and testimony of Dr. Richard William McLean (Baron Dodger), whose 2,000+ documents of evidence serve as witness to both human corruption and divine justice. May his story inspire all who struggle against systematic oppression to maintain faith that truth will ultimately prevail.
